

SAFE IN THE ARMS OF JESUS

Sabbath Day is Chosen by The Master on Which to Recall Pure Spirit of Mrs. J. W. Scobee.

Mrs. Susie Elizabeth Scobee died Sunday morning at 8 o'clock, at St. Joseph's Hospital in Lexington, following a lingering illness. The direct cause of death was complications arising from an operation for gall stones.

Mrs. Scobee was a daughter of Colonel Strother Bowen, who served in the Confederate army under Stonewall Jackson. She was born in Clark county, Va., 55 years ago.

Mrs. Scobee is survived by her husband, Mr. J. Will Scobee; one son, Mr. Claude Scobee; and five daughters, Mrs. W. D. Moore, of Louisville; Mrs. Elizabeth Beets, Mrs. Dick McCormick, Mrs. Jeffries Goodwin and Mrs. Oscar Schmidt.

Three sisters, Mrs. Flora Gregory, of Dallas, Texas; Mrs. Jennie Delmont, of Virginia, and Miss Irene Bowen; and two brothers, Dr. Henry Bowen, of Jacksboro, Texas, and Mr. S. E. Bowen, of this city, also are living.

The funeral will be conducted Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the First Methodist church with services by Rev. O. J. Chandler and Rev. L. Robinson. The burial will take place in the Winchester cemetery.

The following will act as pallbearers: R. F. Scobee, H. R. Scobee, R. H. Scobee, D. B. Scobee, R. O. Fitch and D. H. Bratton.

Honorary pallbearers: J. E. Garner, C. E. Bash, John T. McCormick, H. A. Scrivener, J. A. Tanner and J. W. Wheeler.

Mrs. Scobee was one of Winchester's gentlest and most lovable ladies. Her earnest, unostentatious kindness endeared her to neighbors and to all who knew her.

She was a lovely Christian character, not only by profession, but by her kindly deeds, her gentle words, her spotless living.

As a wife, she was ever faithful, loyal and tender, and as a mother, untiring in her loving ministrations. The wealth of love from her great glorious heart was showered unstintingly upon her husband and children.

During her long illness, when the loved ones saw her patient face drawn with suffering, no murmur escaped her. And even when informed by the surgeons that chances were against her recovery she said, a heavenly smile lighting her wan features: "I am ready, if it be His will."

She leaves to husband, to son and daughters, a priceless heritage, which neither the years nor the cares of this world may take away. The memory of her, as she lived and as she died, will serve as a beacon light to lead them Heavenward, where rests she now in the arms of Jesus.

1809 -- ABRAHAM LINCOLN -- 1912

EULOGY ON LINCOLN

(Herbert H. Moore, of the Local Bar)

True greatness is destined to receive recognition and the readiness with which any people recognize such greatness is a distinctive mark of their stage of civilization.

We may say with pardonable pride that America has been blessed with her quota of illustrious men. Their achievements have unquestionably transcended those of all other nations. Their work has wrought wonders for all mankind and the influences for good which they have instituted will make the peoples of the world their debtors forever.

All nations have had their favorite sons. We have but to glance at the pages of their history to see them worshipping at the feet of their idols.

We see imperial Rome, the mistress of the world at whose shrine all nations bowed, doing homage to the mighty Caesar and offering him the diadem he will not wear. We gaze in admiration and wonder upon the soldiers of France as they conquer the Alpine snows for Napoleon's glory and weep in bitter anguish when that selfish genius breathes his last on the lonely shores of St. Helena. We see the yeomanry of Britain as they rally around the standard of the fearless Cromwell dealing England's monarchy such an effective blow that it dropped from the clutches of tyranny the sacred rights of freedom.

But let us turn from foreign scenes and look upon history made by our own illustrious sons. We see our colonies in rebellion to the Crown. We hear the distant rumblings of the coming revolution and we quake for the safety of our fathers. The gloomy heavens are pierced by the lightning of tyranny and the merciless heel of despotism is raised to stamp out the flickering blaze of liberty. But at this crisis the gathering clouds of despair are torn asunder and the star of Washington shines through. With the skill of a gifted genius he brings order out of chaos and hurls back upon amazed England her defeated legions after being granted the independence we now enjoy.

Grateful, indeed, are we for Washington. American soil was honored by his footsteps and we honor ourselves by singing his fame. In the world's galaxy of heroes he stands undoubtedly first. We see within the same constellation of glory the star of another American which shines with almost equal splendor and we recognize the name of the lowly Lincoln, the anniversary of whose birth we honor today. Thrown into the world from an unknown ancestry by his own merit he climbed the rugged hill of life until upon its topmost peak he stood a compliment to his Creator. Cradled in poverty he was to his dying hour the friend of the common people and whether in his humble home at Springfield or the spacious parlors of the executive mansion he ever lent a listening ear to their appeals. What need is there to repeat his history? The world knows it by heart. Mothers teach his deeds to their lisping children and fathers seek to impress upon their sons the worth of his character. In the imagination of every school boy there is a vivid picture of the boyhood of Lincoln. They see him nurtured and unlearned fighting the battles of poverty in his little cabin home. They see him lying outstretched upon the cabin floor, after all others had sought refuge in slumber, pouring over the books he could borrow by the light of a flickering torch. They see him as he reluctantly leaves his books and climbs the starway of pegs to his bed of leaves in the cabin loft. Ah, what a life of inspiration! What a boyhood of devotion to dawning greatness! Fortunate, indeed, is America in having such a shining example for her sons to follow. Lincoln was called to the helm of state when the service of such a man were so direly needed. He assumed the role of leadership when the stormy clouds of secession were hovering in the horizon threatening every moment to deluge our country with fraternal blood. The safety of Old Glory was entrusted to his hands when the dear old flag was being assailed and he carried her safely through four bloody years establishing her upon that precious motto of union forever.

Throughout the harrowing years of the bloodiest war in history he conducted the affairs of his government so energetically and yet so humanely that as well as being the protector and defender of the North he was the loving and sympathetic friend of the South.

When the clouds of war were scattered by the sunshine of peace and the sword of strife was placed into the scabbard never to be again unsheathed in such a conflict the noble heart of Lincoln was the first to open and welcome the erring ones back into the sisterhood of union. His kindness in dealing with the returning states endeared him to the heart of every former foe and marked the crowning climax to his life of love.

Lincoln was a statesman in every sense that broad term infers. He was gifted with the prophetic vision of seeing conditions which were bound to arise and thus knowing the future he sought to make preparations for it. Seemingly, he was providentially equipped for the work he was to do. He possessed to a large degree the natural requisites of leadership. His personality was pleasing and prepossessing; his intellectual strength a source of admiration to all who knew him; and his character of that loving tenderness which gained for him the hearts of all his countrymen. Among the names which have been carved upon the gilded scroll of heaven none shine with more lustre than his. Among the characters of history around whom a loving world has woven the woof of devotion none touch the heart cords of human sympathy as does Lincoln.

Admiring countrymen seek by towering monuments and priceless materials to exalt his name, but the loath of time will these destroy and they will crumble and fall. Talented speakers will laud his character with encomiums which are gems of purest eloquence but these will be forgotten. Gifted historians will embellish their luminous pages with glowing tributes to his achievements but these will pass away.

The one thing that will not crumble or fall; that will not pass away; but will be as constant as the sun in its journeys through the heavens is the spirit of love which his life engrafted into the hearts of his fellowmen.

MR. JOE ESTES PASSES AWAY

Young Farmer Dies at His Residence On The Ruckerville Pike Monday Morning at 7 O'Clock.

Mr. Joe Estes, a farmer aged 39 years, died Monday morning at 7 o'clock at his residence on the Ruckerville pike. Mr. Estes lived alone in a portable house.

Mr. Estes was injured about the first of January in an automobile accident, when a car owned by the Rayless Motor Car Company, of Lexington, and driven by Robert Lilly, a chauffeur, collided with a two-horse wagon in which he was riding on the Lexington pike in front of McCormick's shop.

Through his attorney, Mr. J. Smith Hays, suit was brought for $2000 damages. Mr. Hayes stated Monday morning that the suit would be prosecuted and would probably be amended if it was found that the accident had hastened his death.

Dr. W. A. Bush, the attending physician, stated that he did not attend Mr. Estes after the accident and that from his knowledge of the case he attributed death to diabetes.

Mr. Estes was never married and has no immediate relatives.

The remains will be buried in the Winchester cemetery Tuesday morning at 10:30 with services at the grave by Eld. J. W. Harding.

The deceased possessed a farm on the Ruckerville pike containing thirty acres.

LATEST IMPROVED MACHINERY INSTALLED

Roxa-Kola Compares Favorably With Any Coca-Cola Drink on the Market.

The attention of the public is called to the advertisement of the Roxa-Kola Factory in this issue of The News. Mr. Wainwright has installed the latest improved machinery in the manufacture of carbonated drinks and says that his drink will compare favorably with anything on the market.

The harmlessness of the drink was demonstrated recently in this office when the editor purchased two dozen bottles and the printer's "devil" drank sixteen in one afternoon. And it never even phased him!

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Abraham Lincoln, the anniversary of whose birth is being observed today all over the country, was born in Kentucky on February 12, 1809.

He was the son of a poor farmer, his grandfather being one of the settlers who early emigrated from Virginia. His father moved to Indiana while he was but a young lad.
Lincoln's schooling did not exceed one year, his time being spent at severe farm labor. In 1830, he removed to Illinois, where, with the assistance of another man, he split 3,000 rails in a day, which secured for him the sobriquet of "The Rail-Splitter."

At this time, Lincoln wore patched home-spun clothes, and lived by surviving. His leisure hours were spent in studying law.

In 1834, he was elected to the Illinois Legislature, and was re-elected three times. He was admitted to the bar in 1836. In 1844 he contested the State, in the interest of Henry Clay, who was then the nominee for the Presidency.

Although Mr. Clay was defeated, Lincoln became so popular as to bring about his own election to Congress in '46.

William Seward left certain of his nomination for the Presidency at the Chicago Convention in 1860, but was defeated by Mr. Lincoln, who was elected over three other candidates, Douglas, of Illinois; Breckinridge, of Kentucky, and Bell, of Tennessee.

In March, 1861, Lincoln took the Presidential chair. He issued the Emancipation Proclamation as a military measure on January 1, 1863.
In 1864, he was re-elected to the Presidency.

Lincoln was assassinated in Ford's Theatre on April 14, 1865, by John Wilkes Booth, a half-crazed actor.
The President had attended the performance at the urgent request of his friends, and somewhat against his own desire.

Both sides had faith in Lincoln, and it was believed that he lived that the Southern States would have been re-admitted on very liberal terms.

Such, in brief is the story of the life of Lincoln. He was gifted, noble, wise and yet his tastes were simple, his manner, while firm was yet humble, and his faith sublime. He lived a life which exemplified the lines of his favorite poem:

"Oh, why should the spirit of mortal
be proud?"

"Like a swift fleeting meteor, a fast-flying cloud;

"A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave,

"He passeth from life to his rest in the grave.

"Tis the wink of an eye;
"Tis the blast of a breath,
"From the splendor of health
"To the paleness of death;
"From the gilded saloon
"To the bier and the shroud;
"Oh, why should the spirit of mortal
be proud?"

FEBRUARY 12.

(From Cincinnati Post.)

These are the days when great economic problems are before the people of America; problems of taxation, hours of labor, cost of living, higher civilization, woman suffrage, honesty in politics and honesty in business. You cannot get away from them. You may be one of those who cry "Let well enough alone," but we are far past that.
The change is going on in every city and hamlet, and always we are working toward more light, greater decency and a finer sense of human obligations.

On February 12 comes the anniversary of the birth of one whom it is well to reverently remember. A good time to read a Life of Abraham Lincoln to your sons, to study the acts of one on whom was placed the mightiest and most tragic burden that ever bowed the shoulders of a human being.

Abraham Lincoln was sane, calm, judicial, wise, kind, aggressive, humane, enlightened, progressive, tender.

Were he living today he would face present problems in the same kindly spirit, and yet with the same indomitable will that characterized him when he made his immortal Gettysburg address.

Read that to your sons and see if it does not fan the flames of good citizenship in their very souls.

Hundreds of good citizens will pay tribute to the memory of the man who was a rail splitter and made himself a President, who was selected by the Almighty for a great work and performed it, although the labor stepped his very soul in tears.

The Greatest American—and the simplest—Abraham Lincoln.

VASTLY DIFFERENT.

Apropos of the Winchester man, who applied at the police station to have the police make his cook leave the Louisville Evening Post remarks editorially:

"That Kentucky gentleman who wanted to have the police make his cook leave is different from the average householder in these days, who would be willing to call on the police to make his cook stay at home."

TAFT FORCES ARE LINING UP

Senator Bradley Recites Personnel of Committee of Prominent Republicans.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Senator Bradley has recited the personnel of the committee of prominent Republicans which is creating the Taft organization in Kentucky under the direction of the Senator. Those named are among the more important cogs of the Taft pre-convention machine which will seek to grind out twenty-six Kentucky delegates for the President, but the Senator said there are many others, privates in the ranks, yet at the same time doing work of great importance, and doing it cheerfully and well.

In the list given out by the Senator, it will be noticed that the names of Representatives John W. Langley and Caleb Powers, as well as that of E. C. O'Rear, are missing. It should be stated that the names published are those with whom the Senator is in constant and confidential communication, and this explains the absence of Langley's name.

Garrett Named

The following is the list of those who will line up the Taft forces in the Tenth District. Hon. H. G. Gar-ret, of Winchester, is one of them: Tenth District—H. Green Garrett, of Winchester; Thomas Pryse, of Beattyville; L. F. Welch, of Irvine; W. J. Seitz, of West Liberty, and Asbury Patrick, of Salyersville and Covington.

Bell Moves a Pillar.

The Church of St. Nicaise, in the city of Rheims, is surrounded with pillars. When a certain bell in the tower is rung the top of one of the pillars always sways to the extent of seven inches on each side, although the base is immovable and the stones are so firmly cemented as to seem like a solid piece of masonry. Notwithstanding that each of the four bells is about the same distance from the trembling pillar, none of the others have the slightest effect upon it.

SOUP HOUSE AND ASSOCIATED CHARITIES

Good Work Continues, And Over 185 Persons Were Supplied Saturday.

—Generous Contributions.

The good work goes on at the Soup House. Over 185 persons were supplied Saturday, the contributions which made the day's serving possible being:

A friend, $2 worth of bread and vegetables.
Mr. David Seabee, $1.
Joe Jones, 50 loaves of bread.
A friend, $1.
A friend, $1.
A friend, 25 cents.

As the meat was paid for, the contribution box was not placed on the outside, and so the friends were not given the opportunity to make their small contributions.

As the meals in which the soup is made and issued were to be used Saturday for other purposes, the committee having the management of the soup house in charge, decided, by the suggestion of the good Christian women who have so nobly given of their time and money for this cause, to serve the soup in the afternoon and give a little more to each member of the family.

When the doors were opened Saturday, the first person to enter was a merchant, who said he had an order to furnish the worth of two dollars in supplies. He was informed that 25 loaves of bread were the things most needed, and the rest of the order was taken up in tomatoes for the soup. It was thought the supply of bread would be sufficient, but God, knowing that twice the amount would be needed, put it into the heart of a friend to send 50 loaves, and they were received as a shower of manna.

Exodus 16-22—"And it came to pass that on the sixth day, they gathered twice as much bread two owners for one man and all the rulers the congregation came and told Moses."

At the Sunday school meeting of the First Christian church and the morning services, Sunday, over forty dollars was collected for this noble cause.

The amount realized at the performance of the Lyric Theatre on Friday, which was given for the benefit of the Associated Charities was $15.
Managers Phillips and Moss are to be highly commended for the charitable spirit which prompted this splendid movement.

TOBACCO SALES

A total of 80,000 pounds of tobacco was sold at the two houses in this city Monday. Although the quantity sold was smaller than usual, good prices were reported.

Seabee's House

The sales were held in the morning at R. A. Seabee's house where 20,000 pounds were sold at prices ranging from $4 to $18. The quality of the weed was medium.

Planters' House

In the afternoon the sales were conducted at the Planters' House, where 60,000 pounds were sold at prices ranging from $4 to $41. The quality was reported good and market strong.

Orma and McDonald sold a crop of over 3000 pounds at an average of $20.81.

Worms Blocked Traffic.

An odd incident caused no little dismay amongst Paris citizens the other morning. A van conveying about five hundredweight of worms, intended for baiting, was overturned on the Boulevard Sebastopol, Paris, and the worms swarmed over the tramway lines and rendered all vehicular traffic impossible until they had been cleared away.

Substitute for Rubber.

One of the many proposed substitutes for rubber is obtained from the soya or Manchurian bean, which resembles the kidney bean, and has been introduced from Japan and the East Indies into the southern United States. A rubber-like product that can be vulcanized is obtained by treating the bean with nitric acid, alkalis and great heat.

GREAT REVIVAL OF RELIGION

One of Most Remarkable Features Among Soldiers During Last Days of Great Struggle.

"One of the most remarkable features of the Civil war," says an old ex-Confederate of St. Louis, Mo., "was the great revival of religion in the Confederate armies during the last 18 months of the struggle.

"While most of the Confederate soldiers were loath to admit it, yet after the fall of Vicksburg, which opened the Mississippi and cut the Confederacy in two, the awful defeat at Gettysburg, which proved the impossibility of a successful invasion of the North, it became clear to every thinking man in the south that the cause was lost. And yet, self-convinced that they were in the right, the soldiers could not persuade themselves but that in some mysterious way they would win. They hoped that complications between the United States government and Great Britain would take place, and when this hope was disappointed they looked confidently for trouble with France over the Mexican affair.
Nothing came of it, however, and still the poor fellows clung to their hope of help from some unexpected quarter until some of them actually came to believe that supernatural aid would be extended at the last moment.

"The chaplains in the southern army were as a rule very earnest, devout men, and encouraged the superstitious hopes of the soldiers, until finally both chaplains and men came to believe that earnest prayer and supplication would bring about Divine intervention in their behalf.

"But the chaplains told the men they must first, as they expressed it, 'get right with God themselves.' So the men proceeded at once to seek their own salvation. The movement first began in the Tennessee army, and among the regiments from the mountain districts of Georgia, North Carolina and Tennessee. Most extraordinary scenes were witnessed in the camps. All night, after a long day's march, perhaps skirmishing or fighting from dawn till dark, the men would gather round the fires, and what little rations they had—and the rations were often very unequal to their needs—then pray and sing, often until long after midnight.

"The preachers were everywhere.
They went from one camp fire to another, encouraging those who were under conviction, praying with those who were groaning crying, shouting with those who thought they had religion, clapping their hands, roaring 'Hallelujah,' and in every way seeking to promote the excitement which had already passed beyond their control.
Many men seemed actually crazed with religious enthusiasm. It seems paradoxical to say it, but whole groups

Foretold Coming of Christ With Legions of Angels.

could be seen in a sort of hysteria, crying and laughing at the same time, embracing one another and performing antics that would have justified a looker-on in the belief that they were all insane. Many cases of the jerks occurred, many of the soldiers went into trances, some had visions, and one member of a Tennessee regiment claimed to have a revelation which foretold the coming of Jesus Christ, with 12 legions of angels to assist the Confederate cause. He said that all human help was vain, and after the Confederacy had been reduced to the last possible extremity, then Christ and his angels would appear, drive back the Union armies, and the cause would be saved. Of course the poor man was insane; he afterwards died in an asylum, but there were many like him, and many, too, who believed in him and his prophecies. But no wonder can be felt at the numerous cases of insanity, both religious and otherwise, which occurred in the Confederate armies during the last year of the war."

Belgium's Proud Position.
Belgium is one of the smallest countries in regard to area, containing only 11,373 square miles, but it stands today the fifth of all nations of the world in regard to commerce and industry, and is the most densely settled in Europe, containing 1,317,561 inhabitants. It is also one of the richest countries per capita and sec-

Triumph of Positivism.
Mme. Ackermann thus expresses the perfect triumph of positivism: "Nature, the eternal stepmother, has but one desire. It is continually to bring forth, endlessly, unceasingly, greedy, mother! she has chosen eternity for herself, to you she leaves—death!"

Baby as Luggage.
The latest style of baby carriages was seen in the Union depot recently.
It is a simple affair—the baby, a board and several straps. At first glance the baby might be mistaken for a bunch of clothing bound together in an old-fashioned shawl strap, but on looking closer you see that on the child's back a board was placed, and three stout straps bound the youngster to it. A leather added to its convenience.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Sees Little Real Progress.
Has the race progressed? Only, we are told, in the sense of acquiring a little more material comfort. Civilized man today is no more moral than the savage, no different from man in the earliest Stone Age. His only goal is that for which he started when the second ice age extinguished the last Paradise—self-preservation. Progress is simply the artificial recreation of the lost Paradise.—Exchange.

The W. C. T. U. of Winchester, finds its treasury depleted.

An exchange will be held by the ladies of the W. C. T. U. in Grubbs and Benton's store, on Saturday, February 7, the proceeds of which will be used in furthering this great work for Temperance in Winchester.

PURE MILK

The state pure food authorities at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station reported Tuesday to County Attorney Scott Bullitt, of Louisville, sixty-five cases for selling watered or skimmed milk against dairymen supplying Louisville and certain restaurants. These cases resulted from the extensive inspections that have recently been made throughout the whole of the Louisville milk field and other parts of Kentucky.

The samples were collected from the milk depots, the dairymen, the restaurants, the hotels and other places where milk is served, and when a sample was found to be watered or skimmed, further investigation was made to determine who was responsible. About 700 samples were analyzed in Louisville and 65 cases reported for prosecution. In most instances the milk was taken from the dairymen's herds to determine how much water had been added to the milk as supplied by the dairymen's cows.

PARCELS POST IN GERMANY.

To the Editor of the News:

In a recent letter, going the rounds of the press, purporting to have been written by United States Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska; he is quoted as saying: "Do you know that in Germany, which is pointed to as the perfection of the Parcel Post System, the patrons are compelled to call at the railroad station for what comes by the parcels post, and are compelled to take to the station the articles they desire to have carried by the parcels post?"

Such ignorance in a United States Senator can only be accounted for on the supposition that this Senator was educated at the same schools from which a majority of the members of the United States Congress and Senate graduated, to defeat "parcels post."

John Wanamaker, when Postmaster General, gave the four obstacles to the establishment of the parcels post in the United States, and they were: 1st, The Adams Express Company; 2nd, The Wells-Fargo Express Company; 3rd, The United States Express Company; and the fourth, which completes the faculty of this school from which a majority of our Representatives in the past have been graduated was The Southern Express Company.

For more than a hundred years, Germany has had some kind of a parcels post, and its present very successful and effective system has been in effect almost fifty years. Under this system, a flat rate is six cents per package, up to eleven pounds, for a distance of not over ten miles, a uniform rate of twelve cents is charged on packages not exceeding eleven pounds.

So today, the cost of sending packages, not over 11 pounds, is a uniform 12 cents, a letter 3 cents, and a newspaper 1 cent.

10 miles it is but half as much as for longer distances, and you can send packages of 11 pounds clear across the German Empire, for a small fraction of one cent a pound. For packages over 11 pounds, the rate is fixed by weight and distance to be traveled, uniform up to 10 miles, increases from 10 to 20 miles and between 20 and 50 miles, 100 and 150 miles, and is uniform for distances over 150 miles.

What can be sent by parcels post? Practically anything and everything except explosives. The packages are delivered and taken for shipment in the country, just as letter and other mail is handled, and in most parts of Germany two rural deliveries per day are made, and in all places, at least one.

For a small fee, packages may be sent collect and remit to original sender. On the streets of all the cities parcels post wagons can be seen at all times of the day, making their deliveries, and on each wagon is a sign: "Packages received," and any one having a package to send, only needs to deliver to one of these wagons. During the holiday season parcels package wagons line the streets, piled high with bundles and two men with each wagon, one a driver and one to deliver the packages, to rich and poor alike, for every one here uses the parcels post thinking no more of it than of sending a letter.

What a contrast to our American method of having all our packages handled by the Express Companies! Such a convenient and cheap method of transportation naturally exerts a marked influence on the various industries, and in none so important as in agriculture. It furnishes the farmer a convenient and cheap method of getting his products—butter, eggs, cream, vegetables, and fruits—on the market—that is into the hands of the consumer—fresh every day from dairy, garden and orchard, bringing the producer and consumer in close touch to their mutual pleasure and profit. It gives the farmer an equally good way of getting his supplies from the city; ordering each day by phone, and cutting out the "Mail-Order" house, instead of building them up.

Among the agricultural products sent by post, butter ranks first, and comes chiefly from North, Eastern and Northern Germany, to the Central and Western large cities.

In the railroad station of Berlin, thousands of packages of butter are handled every day, at the minimum rate of the German parcels post, which allows 11 pounds to be sent any distance in the Empire for 12 cents. The cost of transportation is small considering the fact that the package is both called for and delivered.

In the morning, if you have a package weighing 11 pounds and wish to send it to a place away among the Black Forests of Northern Germany; across two continents and the Atlantic Ocean, it will cost you just 12 cents to have it delivered at the cottage door of the lone peasant in his far-away mountain home in the very far side and end of Europe. Suppose you wish to send that same 11 pounds package to Wades Mill, in Clark county, what will Uncle Sam's same Postmaster charge you? He will inform you that by dividing it into three packages (4 pounds or less each) and properly attaching $1.76 in stamps, he will see that your packages reach their destination.

POULTRY

WINTER CARE OF CHICKENS

Breeders and Promising Pullets Separated From Utility Stock—Warm Meal Fed at Noon.

November 1 finds me busy looking to my houses, the window sashes, etc., spreading dry earth in the pens, so that my pets may be comfortable during the winter. By this time I have culled and arranged my stock for the winter so that I have birds of about the same age, together with my breeders and promising pullets, separated from my utility stock, the cockerels, of course, by themselves, says a writer in the Orange Judd Farmer. The morning meal, thrown in the litter, for the utility pullets is made up of wheat one ounce, oats and barley one-fourth ounce each. Three nouns of each week they are fed one ounce of green cut bone each, and the remaining noon a mash of one-half chopped feed, oats and corn, and one-half bran at the rate of one ounce each, dry weight. The evening meal consists of one-half ounce each of wheat, cracked corn and barley, except in extreme cold weather, when nothing but cracked corn is fed.

Male birds and breeding pen females get for breakfast one-half ounce each of wheat, corn and oats; at noon, raw vegetables; at night, one-half ounce each of corn and oats, again substituting corn in very cold weather. These fowls get one ounce of green cut bone once a week, and all stock get raw cabbage and mangels every day. The ration for the utility stock I consider a forcing ration; in the two winters I have used it I have obtained a little more than a dozen eggs each during December, January and February. March is usually a banner month for eggs. The mash is not a good one, but is the best I can use at noons with the short time at my disposal. Noon is the time I wish my birds to have a warm meal.

I keep down vermin by whitewashing twice a year, giving the birds road dust for a bath, and putting tobacco stems in the nests. The male birds I dust frequently with a good loose powder. My plan of feeding I realize is not ideal, it is criticised by local poultrymen, but I give it, as it may be of use to someone else.

MERITS OF COCHIN VARIETY

Excellent Producers of Eggs in Winter and Young Chickens Are Fairly Good on the Table.

Cochins have certainly the merit of laying well in winter, due probably to their profuse feathering, which prevents undue evaporation of heat. Young chickens are fairly good on the table, but when older they cannot be regarded as even passable in that respect. The flesh is at all times very yellow, and more largely developed on the thighs than the breast. This is due to the fact that Cochins are not flyers; they have only small wings, whilst very large ones would be needed to support such a heavy frame. The weight which Cochins attain is very good indeed. Adult cocks range from twelve to fifteen pounds, hens eight to eleven pounds, and cockerels and pullets two to three pounds less. They are very hardy, and can stand almost any place and soil, but they do best on short, level grass, for the foot feather is broken and spoiled when on long grass or rough ground. The partridge Cochins possess a great variety and brilliancy of color.

the admixture in parts of glossy metallic black, rich dark red, bay and orange giving a very striking effect. The breast, coverts, wing butt, under parts, tail and leg feathers are black, and the saddle and hackle golden red or orange. This refers to cocks, and the hens are equally effective, as the light brown plumage is distinctly pencilled with a darker shade.

Feeding for Result.

In feeding the hen we must use our best judgment to a certain extent. If we are to feed for the egg production, we must give those foods necessary to make those elements which go to make up the egg as well as those that will keep up the hen in the best condition for that purpose.

Introducing New Breeds.

In introducing a new breed, the originators quite frequently advertise the "juiciness" of the flesh, as though it was peculiar to that breed. The truth is, that this juiciness, or the lack of it, lies chiefly with the work of the cook. The flesh of fowls is judged by the flavor and tenderness, and these are largely in the hands of the cook.

TOY REQUIRES MUCH SKILL

Object Is to Collect All Three Feathers in Receiving Cup at Same Time—Patience Needed.

Both little people and big will find amusement in the toy devised by a New York man and shown in the illustration. Anybody will find that it requires all the patience and skill he possesses, or, maybe, a little more, to get all three feathers into the receiving cup at once. The cut explains itself, but any person wishing to make the toy may want more detailed description. A square box-like affair of wire is fastened to a handle from which a twisted wire support, bearing a receiving cup of semi-circular curved metal, rises to the center of the box. The object of the game is to get the three feathers into the cup and it is far from as simple as it sounds. It is easy to get one in and only a little bit harder to get two, but the third makes plenty of trouble. The difficulty lies in keeping the feathers in the cup while tilting the box about to capture the last one.

An Amusing Toy.

A Doll's Silver Set.

A set of silver for the doll's dressing table can be made from tinfoil, so it is a good plan to save all the tinfoil that comes around candy, etc., and smooth it out nicely. You may make a mirror for the dressing room or the doll's boudoir of the tinfoil with a border of gold paper. Cut out a piece of cardboard in any shape you desire and then cover it with tinfoil. The gilt border should not be plain, but should be cut into ornamental corners or used to cover a raised frame of cardboard. If you are going to use the mirror for the dining room or if the mirror in the same manner, with a double cardboard frame around the edge and cover this frame with dark paper in the wood tones.

Even the Octopus Blushes.

The octopus frequently changes in color like a marine chameleon, says Harper's Weekly. It would appear, from recent studies of this creature that the colored pigments whereby this change in color is effected is contained in envelopes in its skin, in the tissue of which are muscular fibers actuated by nerves. Should these fibers become relaxed, a dark pigment appears. The phenomenon is said to be analogous to blushing.

LEXINGTON WOMAN IS ASPHYXIATED

Mrs. Madie Lee Wood is Found Dead by Relatives Who Were Notified By Husband.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 12.—Mrs. Madie Lee Wood, 21 years old, was found dead in her bed, at her home, 228 Kentucky avenue, Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock, death being attributed to asphyxiation from escaping gas, or from fumes from burning gas, from a gas stove in the bedroom. Lewis E. Wood, loan agent at 125 East Main street, husband of the dead woman, is at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. J. S. Stapp, 335 South Upper street, badly burned about the face, head and hands, and suffering from being overcome by gas fumes.

At 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning, Wood, then in a semi-conscious condition, crawled from his home, 228 Kentucky avenue, a block further down the street, to the home of his sister, Mrs. Gertrude Billups, at the corner of Kentucky and Euclid avenues, and gave the alarm that he had been overcome by gas, fallen upon the gas stove and burned, and that he believed his wife dead from asphyxiation.

Met By Faint Order of Gas.

Several men in the neighborhood then rushed to Mr. Wood's home. When they opened the door to the bedroom, they were repulsed with a faint odor of gas, which was found to have escaped from the connections of the gas stove.

Mrs. Wood's body was found lying upon the bed, and appeared to have been lifeless for several hours. The gas stove had been turned around from its natural position before a grate and the connecting rubber tube had been disjoined. The stove was not lighted, and when found the outlet of gas had been turned off.

Explanation of Physicians

The explanation of the physicians and others who examined the room and the body, was that Mr. and Mrs. Wood had left the gas burning when they retired; that the stove, which sat close to the bed, and which had no outlet for the fumes of the burning gas, gave off an odor, probably mingled with a small escape of gas, which resulted in the asphyxiation of Mrs. Wood, and in her husband being overcome.

PITIFUL CASE OF DESTITUTION

Touching Story of Condition of Aged Man and His Three Motherless Children.

(By W. E. Singleton.)

A most heart-rending and pitiful sight is about two and one half miles from Winchester, on the Paris pike. Just before we closed the soup house on Saturday evening, a gentleman brought on old gray-haired man and his three motherless children, two boys and a girl, in a covered wagon drawn by two horses; of how, when he had gotten as far as the voting place on the Paris pike, one of the horses died, and being without food or money, he had brought the remaining animal the two sets of harness to town. He said he thought if he made known his condition, he would be able to get more for what little he had to sell.

The old man had not sold and he was invited back into the soup room. There it was found that the last bucket of soup had been given out. At this time, the passage of scripture recorded in Acts 3-6 came to my mind.

"Then Peter said: 'Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I thee.'"

Oh, how I did wish for a little silver or gold, but we had some of that "shower" left and a few potatoes and some uncooked meat, and we gave these to the old man.

We were so impressed with his story and appearance that, in company with Mr. Joe Powell, we drove out to the place Sunday afternoon. When we got there, the wagon was seen but there was no sign of life about the place; no smoke to indicate that there was any fire; but we hitched our horse and when I knocked at the door of the voting place (a little room about ten by twelve) a little girl about ten years old, opened it a little, and looked frightened, but when we told her we were friends of her father, she invited us to come in.

We did so, and oh, my God, what destitution met our eyes. There was that little child alone, with just a few sparks of fire in the stove. In a step was a piece of the meat we had given her father. In one corner, on the floor, was what they called their bed. I cannot describe it. It looked to me as if the father's shabby overcoat furnished the only covering.

When we had gained the little girl's confidence, we questioned her, and she told us that her father and two brothers had gone to take the dead horse from the road and remove the skin. She said her mother died when she was only five months old; she had been to school part of three terms and was trying to learn some herself. She is quite an intelligent child for her age.

Oh, Christian mothers, with plenty of this world's goods, does it not make your hearts go out in love and sympathy to this little motherless girl to think that when at night you tucked your little darlings snugly in their snowy white beds, after listening to their prayers, and you have kissed them, and on your knees asked God to watch over them, that she was lying on that cold floor without enough clothing to keep her warm.

Indeed, I am sure they all are compelled to sleep in their clothes to keep from freezing.

I left two coats my boys had discarded, and my wife will go out at once to see what she can do. I left word for the father to come to us in the morning.

After making the visit and there being no services at our place of worship, we went to the First Christian church and heard one of the best sermons that we have heard in a long time. I wish every professing Christian in this city could have heard it. Brother MacNeill said we lived what we believed.

We were delighted to hear of the large amount collected in their Sunday school and at the morning services to be used in relieving the suffering of the poor in our city.
